Mid Eyre Medical Practice concludes Nurse Practitioner trial

Mid Eyre Medical Practice clinic is hosting Nurse Practitioner Alison Spicer during May and June as part of a Nurse Practitioner Primary Care Pilot program by SA Health.

The initiative supports Nurse Practitioners to work in primary care settings whilst encouraging general practices to consider how they can invest in this valuable workforce.

Funded by the Australian Government, the pilot program supports nurse practitioners to provide primary health services, at no cost to the patient, ensuring the community can access timely care close to home.

The program has supported general practice across the state including Ceduna, and now Mid Eyre Medical at Cleve, Cowell and Kimba.

See page 2 for more information.

Meet Nurse Practitioner Alison Spicer

What is your qualification and experience?

I am a Registered Nurse and Nurse Practitioner (NP) with extensive experience across emergency, primary care and community-based models of care. My background also includes paramedicine, which gave me strong foundation in autonomous clinical decision-making, acute assessment and rural healthcare delivery. Over many years, I have worked across regional and remote settings am deeply committed to improving equitable access to healthcare in underserved communities.

What drew you to the role?

The Nurse Practitioner (NP) role represents the ability to combine advanced clinical practice with leadership and system reform. I was drawn to it because it enables experienced nurses to assess, diagnose, prescribe and manage patient care independently while remaining grounded in nursing philosophy.

Nurses, and in particular NPs, focus on the patient not the illness, delivering care which is holistic, person-centred, and community focused. For me, becoming an NP was about creating solutions where traditional systems were not meeting community needs, particularly in rural and remote areas.

Where are you based?

I am in regional Tasmania in Devonport and have also worked extensively in South East Asia. My work has focused strongly on regional and remote service delivery, ensuring communities receive safe, high-quality care close to home.

What is most rewarding in the role?

Seeing direct impact on patients and families, when someone receives the right care, at the right time, close to home. Supporting people to avoid unnecessary hospital transfers, manage chronic disease effectively, or simply be reassured in times of uncertainty makes the work profoundly meaningful.

What makes you passionate about the wellbeing of rural residents?

Rural Australians deserve the same access to safe, high-quality healthcare as those in metropolitan areas. Geography should not determine health outcomes.

I am passionate about addressing inequity, building sustainable local services, and ensuring future generations of clinicians can practise to their full scope in rural settings.

How does a NP collaborate with other services to care for people?

Collaboration is central to the NP role. Nurse Practitioners work closely with:

- General Practitioners
- Registered Nurses
- Paramedics
- Allied Health professionals
- Medical Specialists
- Hospitals and community services

We operate within multidisciplinary teams, ensuring care is coordinated, evidence-based, and centred on the patient. In rural settings especially, strong professional relationships are critical to safe and seamless care.

What are your hopes for the NP role within rural communities?

My hope is that the Nurse Practitioner role becomes embedded as a core component of rural healthcare delivery, not as a substitute, but as a complementary and sustainable solution. We should be looking to grow our own nurses into NPs. I hope to see:

- Greater recognition of NP capability
- Improved funding mechanisms that reduce out-of-pocket costs
- Expansion of innovative, block-funded rural models
- Workforce growth to achieve parity across states
- Stronger pathways for future rural nurses to become NPs

Ultimately, my vision is for rural communities to have reliable, accessible healthcare led by clinicians who live, work and understand the communities they serve.

What is a Nurse Practitioner?

A Nurse Practitioner (NP) is a Registered Nurse with the experience, expertise and authority to diagnose and treat people of all ages with a variety of acute or chronic health conditions.

NPs have completed additional university study at Master's degree level and are the most senior and independent clinical nurses in the Australian health care system.

The title "Nurse Practitioner" can only be used by a person who has been endorsed by the Nursing and Midwifery Board of Australia.

National standards for practice ensure that Nurse Practitioners are capable of providing high quality, patient centred care. They are also capable in clinical research, education and leadership as applied to clinical care and health service development.

Nurse Practitioners work as key members of the healthcare team and collaborate with other nurses and healthcare professionals including GPs, medical and surgical specialists, physiotherapists, dieticians, occupational therapists, social workers, and many others. They work in a variety of locations, both in hospital and community settings.

This innovative role aims to:

- Improve access to treatment
- Provide cost-effective care
- Target at-risk populations
- Provide outreach services in rural and remote communities
- Provide mentorship and clinical expertise to other health professionals.

Information provided by the Nursing and Midwifery Board of Australia.

Read more about Nurse Practitioner role at:
<https://www.acnp.org.au/aboutnursepractitioners>

Did you know Nurse Practitioners:

- Have practised in Australia for 24+ years
- Provide health care in all states and territories in Australia
- Can provide patient rebates through Medicare
- Provide prescriptions and access to PBS medicines
- Can refer to hospitals and specialists
- Can order x-rays and diagnostic tests

A Nurse Practitioner can help with:

- Minor illness (colds, flu, UTIs, skin infections)
- Minor injuries (simple wounds, sprains, minor burns)
- Pathology forms/bloods
- Minor lesion removals (small, arms or legs)
- Wound checks, dressings, sutures
- Xray/ultrasound referrals
- Specialist referrals
- Skin checks
- Ear syringe
- Ongoing scripts/regular medications
- Results review / follow-up
- Immunisations
- Women's and men's health (contraception, menopause, routine sexual health)
- Pap smears
- Implanon insertions and removals
- Weight management
- Work Cover certificate (7 days only)
- Age care Rounds

For further information about whether it is best for you to see a GP for your appointment, or whether you can see a Nurse Practitioner, contact your medical clinic.

Angel Flight - Supporting rural healthcare access

Accessing essential healthcare can be challenging for people living in regional, rural and remote communities across SA. Long distances, limited transport options, and travel costs can become significant barriers to receiving timely medical care.

Angel Flight Australia is a national not-for-profit organisation that coordinates free, non-emergency transport for people who need to travel to access medical treatment. Since 2003, it has worked with a dedicated network of volunteer pilots and drivers to ensure distance is not a barrier to healthcare and is proud to have helped over 100,000 rural families in need. Angel Flight arranges flights and ground transport for patients and, where needed, their carers, helping them attend specialist appointments far from home. Volunteer pilots use their own aircraft to transport passengers between regional areas and major centres, while volunteer drivers (known as “Earth Angels”) assist with transport to and from airports and medical facilities.

Angel Flight also supports rural communities by transporting healthcare professionals into remote towns, improving access to essential services such as GP clinics, allied health, and specialist care.

Angel Flight regularly supports patients and healthcare delivery across regional South Australia, including areas such as the Eyre Peninsula, Yorke Peninsula, Riverland, Flinders Ranges, Kangaroo Island, and the Far North. Angel Flight flights must be requested by a registered health professional on behalf of the patient. This ensures travel is medically necessary and appropriate. Angel Flight works closely with hospitals, clinics, and outreach programs to make the referral process as simple and efficient as possible.

To qualify to use an Angel Flight service, you:

- Live in regional, rural or remote areas (typically over 250km from care)
- Need to travel long distances for non-emergency medical treatment
- Are physically able to fly in a light aircraft
- Do not have reasonable access to alternative transport options

Each request is assessed individually to ensure safe and appropriate support is provided.

Dr Angela Travis and pilot Owen Creech

How You Can Get Involved

Angel Flight receives no government funding and relies on the generosity of volunteers and supporters to keep services running. For the past 23 years, Angel Flight has received invaluable support from many thoughtful organisations that recognise the tremendous contribution volunteer pilots and drivers make to rural Australians in need.

Volunteer as a pilot – Qualified pilots with access to an aircraft can donate time and skills to help transport patients in need. Pilots are reimbursed for fuel consumed for each mission. They must have a minimum of 250PIC hours including those holding a CPL or ATPL.

More info: angelflight.org.au/support-us/pilots

Volunteer as a driver – “Earth Angels” provide vital ground support, assisting passengers to and from airports and appointments. More information: angelflight.org.au/support-us/drivers/

Donate – Financial contributions help Angel Flight coordinate missions, support patients, and expand reach. More info: angelflight.org.au/support-us/support-angel-flight-australia

Fundraise – Community events and fundraising initiatives play a key role in sustaining services and raising awareness. If you would like to hold an event for Angel Flight visit: angelflight.org.au/support-us/fundraising

Nate's story: from Kyancutta to care with Angel Flight

Angel Flight pilot Owen Crees with Kyancutta resident, Nate.

Meet Nate, a three-year-old frequent flyer with Angel Flight, from Kyancutta in Eyre Peninsula. Nate and his siblings, Cooper (7), Nala (5) and Jo (1) come from a long line of farmers and live on 12,000 acres of land, farming crops and livestock.

Nate was born with hearing loss and from six months of age began a long series of hearing tests to ascertain the level of audiological intervention he required. Living 7 hours drive from specialist medical care in Adelaide, Nate was a natural candidate for Angel Flight and was referred by his GP to use the free service. Nate and his Mum, Tessa, completed their first Angel Flight mission in 2021 with pilot Owen Crees and Earth Angel John Chambers.

When Nate was a baby, he was fitted with a hearing aid which amplified his natural hearing to an acceptable level, however in 2023, he showed delays in his speech development and further investigation was required.

Earlier this year, Nate underwent bi-lateral cochlear implant surgery at Adelaide Hospital program to develop his ability to detect sound and progress speech. After cochlear implant surgery, audiologists gradually increase the threshold of hearing. This heart melting Tik Tok video of Nate (here) shows him hearing his Mum's voice as they switch his cochlear on for the first time.

Tessa is so grateful for the Angel Flight service which flies her and Nate from Wudinna Airfield to Adelaide Airport in 90 minutes and returns them home that afternoon.

"Angel Flight is a Godsend," Tessa said.

"The alternate trip by road is a several day mission with my four kids in tow, including my baby."

"Being able to travel with Nate to the hospital in the morning and then return to work on the farm and family life that afternoon makes the world of difference to us."

Nate, who loves planes, looks forward to his Angel Flight trips, and Tessa says the happy experience encourages him when he is going through such intense medical intervention. Long standing Angel Flight pilot Owen Crees, flew Nate on his first Angel Flight in 2021 when he was only eight months old and more recently for Nate's post-surgery review appointment in Adelaide in April 2024.

"It was great to see much of Nate's extended family at Wudinna airport when I arrived for the first leg", Owen said.

"It reminded me, once again, how Angel Flight's assistance extends well past the actual passengers to whole families and even entire communities."

Owen says Wudinna's remoteness exemplifies the need for Angel Flight's vital service with all three regional airports (Port Lincoln, Whyalla and Ceduna) a 2.5-hour drive and Adelaide 7 hours by road (usually longer with children).

"Angel Flight turns what would otherwise be a three-day road trip into a day trip which is a great benefit to farming families, especially at busy times of the year."

"Any day I can go flying is a good day but there's nothing quite as special as a day with passengers like Nate and Tessa. It's a privilege to be able to help them."

Women's health night in Cowell

Cowell School Community Library hosted its first "Girls Night In" event for the year last month, bringing together around 25 women from across the district for an evening of connection, conversation and learning.

Guest speakers at the event on April 10 included Lymphoedema Therapist and Physiotherapist Kristy Roeger, who delivered an overview of lymphoedema and lipoedema, and Cleve Massage and Wellness Collective owner Tina Traeger, who spoke about how her clinic came to be and her passion for bringing a broader range of services to rural women, including oncology massage and scar tissue massage.

Event organiser and Library Manager Nicole Turner said Girls' Nights In aimed to give local women a chance to come together, catch up and support one another through shared activities, creative sessions and practical health information.

"It was great to see such a turnout of women wanting to hear about ways they can be proactive with their healthcare."

"Girls Night In" events are a health-focused hit at Cowell School Community Library.

Semi-skilled migration pilot to boost health workforce at Cleve

Cleve District Hospital has welcomed new staff from the Philippines as part of a migration pilot project that is attracting future nurses to settle in the town.

Eyre and Far North Local Health Network (EFNLHN) has partnered with the District Council of Cleve, the South Australian Skills Commission and TAFE SA for the pilot, with the aim of attracting overseas workers and their families to Cleve.

The pilot targets trained nurses from the Philippines, employed as Assistants in Nursing (AINs) at Cleve District Hospital and Crestview Hostel, and undertaking Enrolled Nurse traineeships through TAFE SA.

EFNLHN Chief Executive Officer Julie Marron said she was delighted to welcome Trisha Dizon and Leaster Mendoza (pictured) - the first of five staff moving to Cleve, with three others expected before July.

"Initiatives like this help us strengthen our skilled workforce, supporting safe, high-quality care close to home."

She said the project complemented other recruitment strategies, including a focus on "growing our own" workforce by creating opportunities for local people to pursue health careers without leaving their communities.

Housing and community support is being provided through the District Council of Cleve.

District Council of Cleve Mayor Phil Cameron said the project reflected the council's commitment to working with industry and training partners to strengthen local workforce and grow the population.

"Attracting workers is about more than jobs; it's about creating welcoming communities. We're focused on supporting these families to build connections, access local services, and become part of community life from day one."
