To whom it may concern,

I am writing on behalf of my 11-year-old daughter, [REDACTED] who is deeply passionate about the environment. We understand that the new South Australian Biodiversity Bill is currently open for consultation, and as a nature-loving family, we want to express our strong support for stronger protections for our state's biodiversity.

Emmy, like many young Australians, is deeply concerned about the ongoing decline of nature. Unfortunately, if this bill proceeds unchanged, it will not do enough to prevent further biodiversity loss. Stronger measures are needed to stop the clearing of native vegetation, ensure critical habitats are completely off-limits to development, and provide robust protections for threatened species in South Australia.

Emmy has attached a drawing she created in response to the bill, reflecting her hope for a future where nature is properly safeguarded.

Thank you for taking the time to consider our concerns. We hope to see meaningful changes to ensure this legislation truly protects the environment for future generations.

Kind regards,

"The truth is: the natural world is changing. And we are totally dependent on that world. It provides our food, water and air. It is the most precious thing we have and we need to defend it."

We have to do everything we can to protect and save planet Earth, our home.

It's now or never!
It's time to take action!
The world is in our hands!

"This is the story of our changing planet, and what can we do to help it thrive....."

PLEASE SAVE OUR HOME!
