

A new plan for young South Australians

Have your say: Closes 6 August 2023

What's happening

Young people hold the key to creating a better future. We know you want to be taken seriously, listened to, and included in the important conversations.

That's why the South Australian Government invites all young people living in SA aged 12–25, as well as youth sector stakeholders, to participate in a public consultation for South Australia's next Youth Action Plan, from 7 June to 6 August 2023.

What is the aim of this consultation?

South Australia's Youth Action Plan (the plan) is coordinated by the Department of Human Services (DHS), which has a leading role in policy about young people aged 12–25 who live in South Australia.

We want to hear about the real issues that are important to you and how we can better meet your needs.

This includes:

- a considering the potential actions
to be included in the plan
- b proposing other actions,
you think should be included
- c raising any other issues
for young South Australians.

South Australia's Youth Action Plan 2023–2026

South Australia's next Youth Action Plan aims to improve your access to:

✓ opportunities

✓ resources

✓ support.

We want to know what is most important to you

The consultation asks how the South Australian Government can best support you across 5 topic areas:

- 1 Physical health, and social and emotional wellbeing and mental health: Young South Australians are physically, mentally, and emotionally healthy.
- 2 Safety and justice: Young South Australians are safe and nurtured.
- 3 Education and employment: Young South Australians are successfully learning and/or working.
- 4 Connections and access to resources: Young South Australians are connected to community and needed resources.
- 5 Citizenship and participation: Young South Australians participate actively in society.
